Or is this just for me? I have copied [REDACTED] and will copy him on the newest version. Please advise. Thanks, [REDACTED]

I am cc'ing [redacted] from RMD here [redacted] please forward a complete copy of the manuscript to [redacted] (with the redacted p. [redacted] instead of the original), and please also send the page with the corresponding codes for the redaction numbers. Thanks.

[redacted] you will see that the version you receive has some handwritten changes - those are the changes Wittman told us he [redacted] made. You will also see bracketed sections with reference numbers - those are the sections we instructed him to take out, and he refused. Because Wittman has refused to provide us with the final version, we had to take our best interpretation of his emailed responses, so what you'll see is RMD's best guess about what it now looks like.

I appreciate your involvement and welcome your input. If this is unclear at all or you have any questions, please reach out to me by phone or email anytime.

Re: Manuscript titled, "Priceless"

Dear Mr. Wittman,

The Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) received your submission on November 23, 2009, requesting prepublication review of your manuscript titled, "Priceless."

The FBI's prepublication review policy provided for a review period of thirty business days not counting the day of receipt. This review period can be extended depending upon the complexity of the materials being reviewed, but in most cases the reviews are completed within the thirty business day period. A review of your submission is in progress and we will advise of the results upon completion.

Should you have any questions, please contact [redacted] at 540-868-1697. Thank you for your participation in the FBI's prepublication review process.

All -
We had a big meeting with DOJ on this case yesterday and we are continuing in our efforts to persuade DOJ to file a lawsuit against Wittman based on his publication of this book. They have told us that we don't have enough to get an injunction to prevent publication, but we might have enough to sue him for the royalties. They have asked us for a lot of supporting information, including copies of all correspondence to/from Wittman and the publishers during the prepublication process.

[redacted] is the CDRU PLS who is working on this case. Please, as soon as you can, forward her b6 -2 emails containing any communications you had directly to/from Wittman, Random House, or Crown Publishing. Please include the attachments.

They don't need any internal emails, or forwarding of emails internally (e.g., if you sent one to Wittman, and forwarded it to me separately, they need the former but not the latter).

[redacted] I don't know if you had any written communications with him before or after your meeting in Feb., but they've asked b6 -2 for any notes you might have taken before/during/after the meeting as well.

CDRU will be producing these for release to DOJ only (and marked as such), so please don't worry about what sensitive information might be contained in the emails or attachments.

I have warned [redacted] that she might get some duplicates through this process, and she's prepared for that. So please b6 -2 send everything you have and she can sort out the overlap.

Any questions, please don't hesitate to call or email me. Thanks!

[REDACTED] RMD needs a serious and timely call on whether the fixes Wittman put in still give away too much of the Gardner case, source info, and [REDACTED] taken from FBI case records. No one else can make that call but BS--and, [REDACTED]

Please ignore what may be poetic license as to who did what and who's the hero and who's not--and also what you know to be derived from public sources--and concentrate on what would truly hurt the investigation and prosecution, risk the exposure of sources, and risk [REDACTED]

My sense is that he may have satisfied [redacted] concerns--but, [redacted] I defer to you on that.

Our OGC litigators are prepared to take the pursuit of a remedy across the street to DOJ--but they need some good assessment of what: 1) appears to come only from FBI records and 2) would cause harm if exposed.

Thanks,

All,

I received an e-mail from Mr. Wittman in response to my e-mail yesterday informing him that his manuscript was not approved for publication. In that e-mail I invited further discussion. Mr. Wittman requested further justification of our required redactions. While I believe the burden is on Mr. Wittman in this instance to justify why the information is not sensitive, the process of further specifying the rationale for required redactions is part of the normal discourse in prepub matters. In addition, should this be litigated, we will have to be able to articulate our rationale.

The following FOIA categories seem applicable in this instance:

- 64/b7C ① Personal identities and information on individuals derived from FBI investigations (not from a public source);
- 67A ② Information from a pending FBI investigation (not from a public source) and whose release would harm an investigation; b7A
- 67E ③ Information that would disclose a sensitive law enforcement technique and whose release would allow future circumvention of the law; b2/b7E b7E
- ④ Confidential informant identities and the information provided by them; b6/b7C/b7D
- ⑤ Information that if released could result in harm to an individual; b7F
- ⑥ Information that was provided to the FBI by another law enforcement agency under the understanding that it would not be further disseminated or attributed to them;
- ⑦ Grand Jury, witness protection, federal income tax information.

The review must be line by line. In the normal give and take the author has to show that the information is in the public domain for us to budge. We don't budge on informant identities, sensitive techniques, or other areas where special concerns are raised because the author's association with a case gives credibility even if the information is speculative. If the information came out in trial or a DoJ press release (as has happened) there is not much we can do.

Accuracy is not an issue--it is not unusual for the author's role in an investigation to take on larger than life proportions.

I would ask Boston to review the objectionable portions and notate which of the above categories it falls in. I know that is self evident in much of the investigation, but pending investigation information is the area where FBI information is most likely to be mixed with public source information. I believe we have enough information from [REDACTED] etc. b7E -2

If possible, we need this information by Monday COB. Also, would Boston be amenable to sitting down with Mr. Wittman to discuss alternative language that might be acceptable?

Thanks,

I am [redacted] Coordinator of the Prepublication Review Office. My office's function is to review intended publications by current/former FBI employees to determine if the employee has included information obtained during FBI employment, which should not otherwise be released. Examples would be classified information, Rule 6e, sensitive techniques, pending investigations or prosecutions, personal privacy info, FBI information not available to the general public through means such as FOIPA, the media or court records, etc. b6 -2

As is more common than not, it is necessary that we call upon FBI "subject matter experts" to review the submissions of current/former FBI employees as the subject matter at issue is beyond the general expertise of my employees. It is in that regard, that I am contacting you.

b7E -2, -3

Would you please have someone in your office review one chapter of a manuscript that we received from Former Special Agent Robert Wittman (Retired) titled, "Priceless." Mr. Wittman describes [redacted] in a case he worked in the art world. The documents are being sent to your office through the bureau mail. Please provide us your conclusions regarding the information in question. Should you have questions, please feel free to call or email me.

General Rules-We have 30 business days to respond to the author. We would like to respond to the requester as soon as we can. Also, as the material is proprietary information, it is not to be disclosed/shared beyond those persons involved in the review process. I've also attached our Prepublication Guidelines.
